The REBUILD IRAQ RECRUITMENT PROGRAM (RIRP) and PRAETORIA enter strategic partnership

BAGHDAD, BERLIN (May 03, 2006) - The REBUILD IRAQ RECRUITMENT PROGRAM (RIRP) is a German industry initiative to rebuild Iraq. Within this program numerous German companies are active in Iraq – their security and protection will now be in the hands of PRAETORIA.

PRAETORIA offers a broad range of security services, ranging from risk consultancy (who is under risk of what?) to special trainings for personal, who have to stay in Iraq more frequently or for a longer time, to close protection, static security and protection of transport. PRAETORIA makes use of experienced international operatives led by German or British team leaders. The company is based in Bielefeld/Germany, but has an office in Baghdad as well as offices and operations in Afghanistan, Sri Lanka, Columbia or Sudan.

Many German companies still fear the risks of doing business in hostile regions like Iraq. But experience shows that most risks can be minimised if one is aware of the existing dangers and adapts to the circumstances. Benefits of support by an experienced, well-tried and reliable partner in security matters are obvious: personal on the ground can focus exclusively on their business interests but still count on the best protection available under the given circumstances.

Iraq is in need of help to rebuild the country, which is currently offered primarily by American and British firms, who again rely on American and British security companies. RIRPs and PRAETORIAS strategic cooperation enables German companies to do business in the country and count on German risk and security consultancy. This goes a long way to avoid problems of communication, improve security further and reduce costs in the long term.

The strategic partnership with PRAETORIA means a further opening of the Iraqi market for all RIRP-member companies, which make use of the professional support of PRAETORIA in terms of security. Because of the security situation in Iraq, which is still difficult, RIRP advises all German companies doing business in Iraq to make use of the services offered by PRAETORIA.
